Your title isn't limited to that, but answers are. Could not find driver for this mouse This will always return an error. While it is not clear from the description what is wrong, the title could be interpreted as "Couldn't find driver" which is the assumption a human being might make, but not a computer. Your question title is very limited so I can't answer it. You should consider not asking very "open-ended" questions. They are extremely annoying to answer and downvotes happen often, sometimes quickly. In your case, the title doesn't match your question description at all. Your description is very short. (It even doesn't mention what you're searching for.) You should consider improving it. The description of your question is too broad for a question on software.recs.stackexchange.com You should check your site's help center. Your question is not specific at all. Q: Regular Expression to filter if non digits are on either end I'm trying to make a function which takes in a string, removes digits from the beginning and the end, and if the string contains nothing but whitespace, it would return true. Here is what I came up with: def isClean(s): if re.compile('^$', re.U).search(s): if " " in s: return True else: return False else: return True test 6d1f23a050
